Mokena Boy Weds Southern Girl

The following item appeared in the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier of March 23rd:

"A simple but pretty wedding of the week was that of Miss Mary Collins, daughter of Mrs. S. L. Collins, to Mr. Eugene Leonard Reynolds, solemnized at the home of the bride's mother on the evening of Monday, March 20, at 8 o'clock, the Rev. H. D. Bull, rector of Christ church, officiating.

The room in which the ceremony was performed was tastefully decorated with potted plants, of which an altar had also been improvised, and before which two dainty satin cushions were arranged, these being especially made for the occasion by Mrs. R. A. Durese, an aunt of the bride. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of dark blue messaline, with which she wore a corsage bouquet of white roses.

After the ceremony the young couple received the congratulations and good wishes of their friends, and refreshments were served, little Misses Mary and Editha Collins and Herbert and Hasell Coleman, nieces and nephews of the bride, assisting.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds will make their home in Chicago, much to the regret of the many friends of the bride, who is popular with a wide circle of young friends."

As Eugene is leaving Charleston, his wife is expected to arrive in Mokena next week for a long visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Reynolds.

Mrs. Leipstorf, her mother, was brought home from the hospital a few weeks ago but was taken back again Friday for treatments, as they were helping her considerably.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods have just returned from Hot Springs. It must be a very good climate down there as Mr. Woods has added on a considerable weight.

Perfect score blue ribbon badges for 100% on the first list of eighth grade word given were won by Edward Andersen of Alpine and Verla Dewese, Mabel Rust, Irene Stelter and Lois Ludwig, of Orland. On the entire list of words given the four winners of delegates' badges to the final contest were Lois Ludwig, Irene Stelter, Verla Dewese and Clara Yunker, of Orland. The contest showed a high standard in spelling by all the contestants. Three plucky sixth graders were in the race and won very creditable scores. They were Bertha Bettenhausen and Harry Schult of District 140 and Laura Andersen of Alpine. The contest was in charge of Country Life directors, Miss MacMahon and Miss McClaughrey. Ice cream and cake was served to the visiting contestants at the close by the eighth grade pupils of Orland village.

A notice has been posted warning villagers to keep their chickens and other live stock from roaming on the village streets and in neighbors' yards from April 1st until November 1st.

A ticket of village officers is being gotten up. So far as known there are only three candidates for trustee, A. C. Kay, Edgar Cooper and Albert Loebe being the candidates. Thomas Wheeler is a candidate for the office of treasurer and William Witt for clerk. This election will probably be held April 18th.

Miss Lillie Yunker was taken to the Burnside hospital Wednesday morning and operated on for appendicitis by Dr. W. R. Schussler. Mrs. Glenna Cannon went along with Mrs. Laura Yunker and witnessed the operation.

Mrs. Carrie Byle, formerly Miss Carrie Riggle, is the proud mother of an eight and one-half pound baby boy.

Sarah Kruspe and Mrs. Ole Anderson spent Thursday in Chicago. Both had a very pleasant time sitting in a dentist's chair.

None of the Doctors called on the barber Saturday, but if they had no doubt they would have had a patient as there are so many election cigars floating around town at present and everybody it seems goes to the barber shop to smoke them. Christ Steinhagen even left a whole box of cigars at the shop for the boys to smoke on him. No wonder the barber was a sick woman.

Be it known that Fredrick Utke, better known to the boys as "Freida" alias "Friday," practices shooting pool on Wagner's table for two or three hours, or until he is in fit condition, then he goes over to Kruspe's and wants to take on all comers.

Ole Anderson and family were called to Gibson City, Ill., on account of the death of his father, Nels Anderson, who died of paralysis Sunday night. Mr. Anderson had been an employee of the Wabash R. R. since the road was built. He retired from railroading two years ago and since then has made his home with his sons and daughters, spending many days in Orland. Mr. Anderson was seventy-seven years old, and was the father of ten children. Four daughters and three sons and many grandchildren are left to mourn his death. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at Gibson City. He was laid to rest beside his wife, who died fourteen years ago.

Ph. Steffen, Sr., is the owner of a new Ford touring car.

The officials of the town audited the town books Tuesday afternoon, March 28th.

Tinley Park Man Installs Radio

The radio fever has invaded Tinley Park. Henry F. Brugge-man, well known grain dealer here, has just installed a radio receiving set, and is hearing messages, concerts, etc., very plainly whenever he wishes to listen in. On Sunday Mr. Brugge-man entertained the Fink family of New Lenox, the Rev. Kemnitz family of Mokena and other guests. A sermon preached at the Medinah Temple in Chicago was very plainly heard.

The township election is now at white heat, and every one of the candidates is straining to the utmost to put in his best legs before election next Tuesday. It is said this will be one of the largest elections ever held in Bremen township. Herman Siemen, who had been a candidate for highway commissioner, has withdrawn, leaving the field to John Bettenhausen and John Clarke. A very hot fight for this office is eminent.

The ice cream season is nearing, and Charles Hollstein is going to handle ice cream for the spring and summer. See his adv. on the back page of this issue.

With the advent of spring the baseball bug also is getting busy, and the fans are eagerly awaiting the first game. Through the efforts of the Tinley Park Athletic Club, a new team is about to be organized, which will be one of the strongest and best teams in this section. Big plans

Mrs. Fred Hinspeter spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Yunker of Mokena.

There isn't much interest in town election this year, as there is only one ticket, and not many votes will be cast April 4th.

Fred Harnock is the owner of a new Buick touring car, which he purchased of Heimer, Mayer & Geuther. His son Alvin bought his old car.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO HOLD CITIZENSHIP INSTITUTE

The Citizenship Class of the Woman's Club of Joliet extends an invitation to all women of Will County to attend a "Citizenship Institute" to be held in the Public Library of Joliet on Wednesday, April 5.

There will be a morning session beginning at ten o'clock and an afternoon session beginning at two o'clock. There will be no charge. A speaker on the civic topic will address the luncheon group.

Oh, Pshaw! Betty Brown says:

"Wait till next week, and I will surely tell you where I am to be found."

Frankfort Hopes To Get Concrete Road

The concrete road question is a live one in Frankfort township. It is possible that Frankfort may get a concrete road through the village if present plans work out. A petition has been in circulation the past few weeks to induce the State Highway Department to concrete the proposed Kankakee road through Green Garden township on the center road which would mean that this road would run through Frankfort following the street north of the St. Peter's church corner, across the M. C. R. R., and thence north to connect up with the Lincoln Highway and perhaps continue north to Orland. It is understood that Peotone is working hard to have the concrete road come on this routing as it would bring it within three miles of Peotone, which could connect with the concrete road by way of macadam roads. On the other hand Green Garden does not wish to have the concrete road take the center road, but would rather see it go two miles west which would bring it out on the Lincoln Highway near the Mokena road, in which event the concrete road would run north of the Lincolnway through Mokena and parallel the Rock Island railroad to Tinley Park.

From present indications it would seem that if Mokena wants a concrete road through the village they had better get busy. It all depends who can get the State Highway Department to declare which route is the most acceptable. In either event Frankfort township will be benefited if the proposed road is built. This highway will not be constructed for at least another year or two.

John Maybaum, who fell from a ladder while painting at the George Hasenjaeger home, has been confined to his home as both his legs were paralyzed by the fall. He is slightly improved. He fell eighteen feet.

The Kaffee Kranz of St. Peter's Evangelical church was held Wednesday and was well attended.

The confirmation class of St. John's Evangelical church, numbering fourteen members, will be confirmed by Rev. G. Lambrecht on Palm Sunday morning, April 9th. The members of this class will partake of their first communion on that day.

On Good Friday morning services of the church and the communion will be given. A preparatory service will be held on Thursday evening.

On Easter-Sunday special services will be held in the morning at the St. Peter's Evangelical church and the young people will be in charge of an elaborate Easter program in the evening.

The Brotherhood will meet in monthly session next Tuesday evening at the St. Peter's Evangelical church.

The traction line is causing much speculation as to whether it will be junked or not. The Interstate Commerce Commission has not yet decided whether the traction company can cease operations or not. In the meantime the company is offering the car barns at Frankfort for sale, which would indicate that the company expects to quit operating.

If Frankfort does have two bus lines, and not the traction line, it will be badly handicapped for transportation service, express, mail, etc. What Frankfort needs is a direct road to Chicago.

TOWN POLITICS HOT

Town politics are getting pretty hot. A real live election is looked for. The fight for supervisor is likely to be a keen one as both candidates are strong men. Mr. Lanke-nau, the Republican nominee, served as chairman of the County board when he was supervisor of Green Garden and made an excellent record.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church will meet Thursday, April 6th, at the Methodist parsonage.

The Official Board of the M. E. church will hold its monthly meeting on Friday, March 31st, at the parsonage.

The 13th Triannual meeting of Will County Home Improvement Club was held Thursday, March 30th, 1922, at the Joliet public library. An interesting program was given.

A daughter, Hilda Irene, was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. Oglesby Sunday, March 19th. Mother and baby are both doing well.

Weekly devotional meetings are being held every Wednesday night at the M. E. parsonage. Study and thought of the following Sunday school lesson is taken up at that time. It is your meeting. Come out and help it grow.

A shoe shop has been opened up for business by O. A. Matter, on Kansas street, where the old interurban freight office used to be.

are in the making for a very interesting season of baseball. All the neighboring teams will be played, as well as outsiders.

The Tinley Park churches are busily engaged preparing for their Easter programs.

HENRY ABBE AND FAMILY

FIRE CHIEF AT NEWS-BULLETIN OFFICE

The News-Bulletin office had a visit from the fire marshal, Herman Schweser, Tuesday afternoon. No, there was not a fire, but the cellar was flooded. There was about 14 inches of water in the cellar for a week and as the drain was clogged the water could not drain out. The village fire hose was inserted in the drain and the pressure turned on from a nearby fire plug. This pressure cleaned out the drain and in a few minutes the cellar was drained.

Mrs. J. W. Jackson has been very ill the past week. She is slightly improved.

BACK TO MOKENA

John Martin, of Bellrove, Ill., arrived here the past week to make his home with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Albert Hodell. Mrs. Martin arrived here a few weeks ago. Mr. Martin formerly conducted a general store here which was destroyed by fire. Mr. Martin went to Montana where he lived for a number of years, later going to Bellrove.

Wm. Selk Dies At Plymouth, Neb.

The latter part of the past week Mrs. Henry Sass received a message telling of the serious illness of her son-in-law, Wm. Selk, at Plymouth, Nebraska, and asking her to come. She left Saturday. On Sunday afternoon the Emil Braun family received a telegram saying Mr. Selk had died Sunday morning. Mrs. Sass did not get to Plymouth until in the evening.

Mr. Selk was 54 years old. He is survived by his widow, four sons and two daughters. He had been ill all winter and the last seven weeks was confined to his bed. Funeral services were held Wednesday at Plymouth.

The New Lenox R. N. A. held a bazaar at the Grange Hall Wednesday afternoon and was well attended. Quite a number of out of town people were present.

From present indications the Lincoln Highway will be concreted through New Lenox as originally laid out, that is will run from the Wabash viaduct east of the village through the Edward Francis property, thence back of the M. E. church and through the lot occupied by the dance hall. Members of the county board of supervisors were here last week looking over the property involved. It is understood that the blue-prints for the highway have been completed from the Frankfort end of the highway up to the Wabash viaduct.

Blair Gump, who is attending the manual training school at Joliet, met with a serious accident when he had the fingers of his right hand caught in some machinery and badly crushed and cut.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

COMMENDABLE DESIRE

A LITTLE girl sees a doll, and instantly there comes a yearning in her heart to clasp the doll to her breast and call it her own.

She raises her delighted face to her mother and stretches out her chubby hands in pleadings that cannot be denied.

A boy craves a knife, and he holds to his wish until he gets it gratified. Then he proceeds boy-fashion to nick things, which he has been forbidden to cut and finally gashes his finger.

As the girl and the boy grow older their desires undergo a radical change. With accumulated experience and knowledge, they seek more substantial possessions, good opinions, or a particular place in the world where they may become conspicuous and powerful.

And thus all through life their desires grow, assume new forms, urge them forward or backward, mold their character for good or evil and shape their destiny.

The desire to do good is the most ennobling thought man or woman can possibly have.

It is the only desire that does not warp the soul with selfishness or destroy faith.

To build up images and to yearn for things which can be of no permanent use to us or to our fellow beings, is but a waste of energy which ought to be put to better use.

President Harding longs to bring peace to the world.

Doctors and nurses desire to heal the sick and alleviate the pains of the suffering.

There is a growing wish everywhere among the enlightened to eliminate the parasite, by urging everybody to useful effort, especially the young and those inclined by reason of their wealth to waste their time in idleness.

What is your chief desire?

Is it something of a selfish nature, agreeable or pleasure bringing, or something which will some day prove a lasting benefit and blessing to all mankind?

There is one intense, compelling expectation in the heart of every human being which controls his or her life.

What is yours?
If it is good, buckle on the armor of faith, put jealousy, selfishness and fear behind you and make yourself distinguished.

KIDDIES SIX

By Will M. Maupin

DAY DREAMS

I LONG for the days of the barlow knife,

And the sore toe tied with yarn;
For the "mumblepeg" and the "Boston law"

In the shade of the moss-grown barn.

I even yearn for a stone-bruised heel,

Or a back burned red by the sun;
For the old-time zest for my couch of rest

I had when the day was done.

I long for the days of the "sight unseen,"

And the peg tops spun with twine;
For my old-time place down at second base

As one of the village "Nine."

I even yearn for the finger bunged

Or the thumb with a ragged split;
Or the old-time lump on my bulging brow

That showed where the baseball hit.

I long for the days of the swimmin' hole,

And the "swish" of the old fish-line;
For the "crookies," "aggies," "glassies" and

The "nealies" that once were mine.

I even yearn for the blistered hands

That came from the old grub hoe;
For the appetite that came with night

In the days of long ago.

I long for the days that are long, long dead,

When my heart was free from care;
For the sunny hours when my boyish soul

Was as light as the summer air.

But, thank the Lord, I am living yet,

And I thank Him, too, that I
Can sit at ease when the day is done
And dream of the days gone by.

Sangamon county and its various townships were saved nearly $10,000 when the county highway superintendent, the board of supervisors' road committee and a committee from the Town Clerks and Highway Commissioners association contracted on the open market to purchase nearly 1,000,000 gallons of oil for road purposes. The contract price was .0483 cents a gallon, one cent less than estimates submitted at the state house a few days ago, when eight counties were ready to purchase millions of gallons of oil. All bids offered at that time were rejected on the contention that they were excessive.

Hettler, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, declared in a report made public. "The self-sacrifice learned during the war has been superseded by an exhibition of selfishness and profiteering," he said. "They have resulted in high prices for materials and unfair demands by labor."

Seventy ex-service men will constitute the recently authorized Cook county police, according to Maj. Albert Denman, chief deputy of highways. Examinations and recommendations for appointments have been completed and appointments will be announced soon, to become effective on April 1. Rules governing the appointment require that each of the men, who will be clothed with full authority of a city policeman, must furnish his own uniform and motorcycle.

For more than 100 years automobiles have been issued by the state automobile department for 1922, officials said. Before the demand for license plates lets up the department expects to issue in the neighborhood of 740,000 sets. These figures indicate that there are or soon will be in operation in Illinois approximately 650,000 passenger cars and 90,000 trucks. Licenses for 1921 numbered 670,452. It is estimated that there are approximately 200,000 more automobiles in Illinois this year than in 1919 and 180,000 more than in 1920.

Few public garages are complying with the law requiring the registration of all automobiles brought in for storage or repairs, Secretary of State Emmerson declared. The legislature, Secretary Emmerson said, is finding difficulty in keeping pace with conditions brought about by the increasing number of automobiles, and the garage registration law was passed as an intended aid to the recovery of stolen cars. Twenty-five years ago, the secretary pointed out, there were four automobiles in the United States. Today the number is something like 10,500,000.

An offer to provide the funds to finance a fellowship at the college of agriculture at the state university at Urbana for the study of problems met by the Whole Milk Marketing association has been made by the Illinois Agricultural association. The movement of the Illinois organization is in conjunction with state farm bureau federations in other states, who it is said are making like offers to their state universities. It is expected that the results of the investigations in the various universities may be brought together and compiled into one report.

Regarding a strike as inevitable, fifty members of the Illinois Coal Operators met at Chicago in a council of war. The tactics adopted to meet the walkout, they intimated, will be the closing of every Illinois mine, save for necessary maintenance men, and the awaiting of the first sign of a break in the miners' ranks. No attempt will be made to operate with nonunion men, it was said. The one possibility of a peaceful settlement—the conference which has been promised by President Frank Farrington of the Illinois miners before March 31—will amount to little or nothing, even if held, in the opinion of Rice Miller, president of the operators.

An investigation of charges of trafficking in physicians' licenses, pharmacists' certificates and other similar permits issued by the state department of registration and education was ordered by Governor Small.

Out of the underworld, whose "grapevine" telegraph has been tapped by operatives for the Illinois Bankers' association, has come a tip that several Illinois banks are marked for robbery during the next two weeks, according to warnings sent to all banks by the association's detective department.

WOULDN'T NEED A BOAT

House Had One Advantage Over Those on the Street Below, According to Agent.

The real estate agent was endeavoring to impress Mr. Klinker with the extreme desirability of the house in Newville. He opened the door at the cellar stairs with a flourish.

"We'll go down, if you like," he said briskly, "but you can see there's everything anybody could wish in a suburban cellar—hard cement bottom, white-washed sides, good coal and wood bins, approached by raised platform; furniture the same, set tubs the same."

"What's the need of those raised platforms you speak of?" asked Mr. Klinker, peering into the darkness.

"Handy in the spring and fall rains," said the agent. "Shows the advantage of this location, that they're all you need. Street below this, I'm told, a small boat goes with every cellar, but we don't handle that street at all."

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"MISSISSIPPI"

THOUGH every school child knows that Mississippi means "The Father of Waters," the fact that the word was originally spelled "Meche Sepe" is apparent only from a study of the Indian source. And even this is only an approximation of the way the phrase should be written, for the Algonquians had no written language which could be transplanted literally into English letters.

The first form in which we find the name of this great river is and slightly closer to the present spelling. Father Laval still further modernized it into Michispi, which another priest, Father Labatt, softened into Misisipi. Since then, the only changes have been to overload the word with consonants, Marquette added the first "s" and some other explorer the second, making it "Mississippi"—the form in which it is used in France to this day, with only one "p." The man who added the other has never been discovered, but he must have been an American for, at the time of Louisiana Purchase, the name was generally spelled in the colony with a single "p."

WHAT TO EAT

LITTLE cakes that are nice for children's parties are:

Come-Agains.

Sift two cupsful of flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add one cupful of chopped raisins and pecans, equal parts of each, and one cupful of brown sugar. Beat one egg, add one-half cupful of milk and stir into this the dry ingredients. Lastly, stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased baking sheet, sift over them a mixture of cinnamon and sugar and bake in a quick oven.

Baked Oyster Plant.

Select several large roots of salsify, scrape and wash as usual, dropping into cold water with a little vinegar to keep them from discoloring. Place well brushed with olive oil on the rack in the oven and bake until done, turning occasionally. Put into a hot dish and pour over them a white sauce made by cooking two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour together with one cupful of milk. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in the oven until the crumbs are well browned. Grated cheese may be sprinkled over the dish if desired.

Sweet Pepper Souffles.

Cut out the seeds and membranes from four sweet peppers and parboil. Put through the meat chopper, mix with two tablespoonfuls of sharp hard cheese finely grated, two tablespoonfuls of fine sifted crumbs, three tablespoonfuls of flour, blended smooth with an equal quantity of cream and stirred into the slightly beaten yolks of two eggs. Season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and a few pinches of poultry dressing. Blend the whole well together and add the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. The batter should be rather stiff. Place at once in greased individual molds, or paper cases, filling them two-thirds full and bake in a hot oven until well puffed up. This amount should make eight souffles.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

THE SQUARE DEAL

FOR a good many thousand years leaders of thought and morals have been trying to establish the square deal on the face of this earth.

The Golden Rule is older than the Scriptures. Efforts to make men do as they would be done by date back to Confucius.

Up to the last reports, none of these efforts had altogether succeeded. There is still cheating and lying and stealing and injustice in the world.

The little boy growing up in a good home believes everybody is honest and kind, and only after he gets out in the world is he bitterly disillusioned.

And even after his years in school or in college, he finds himself expecting to be fairly dealt with in business, and is disappointed when he finds that this is not always to be.

It would, we believe, be a mistake to destroy the ideals of childhood. We ought to have ideals at some stage of our existence, and childhood is about the only time when they are not likely to be shattered.

But when you start out to fight the world for your living, the sooner you realize that you must at times meet with injustice and unfair dealing, the less likely you will be to cry out that you failed because every man's hand was against you.

The world has still a long way to go in its journey toward civilization. It will have many setbacks before the end of the journey is reached.

Today, if you find other men dealing unjustly with you, even though you deal justly with them, do not be shocked or surprised.

There are such men in the world—many of them. Treat them fairly, but be prepared for a different kind of treatment from them, and don't whine if you receive it.

Be alert to read character. Pick out honest and straightforward men to deal with—particularly as employers.

Be on your guard against cheats, and men who would exploit you. They are always inferior in intelligence to men who do business honestly, and therefore less likely to be able to be of service in advancing you.

Don't complain when you are unfairly dealt with. Grit your teeth and endure it. Find the right kind of people, who are still abundant, and make them your friends, and your company, and your business associates.

It will be a long hunt, but the results will repay you the time you spend on it.

TRUE NEW NO Love

"Removed" Wife's Chum

William Grubb, a New York private detective, objected to the friendship between his wife and George Corcoran last spring and when it became too intimate he killed Corcoran on May 1. Recently he was found guilty of manslaughter. Grubb's defense was that his wife told him she liked her "chum" because he "used to steal silk stockings, watches and other nice things and give them to her." Grubb found him in his home, partly disrobed, on the day he did the shooting.

Stork: Interrupts Suit

Proceedings in a Hackensack, N. J., court were interrupted recently when one of the chief witnesses was taken ill. The court ordered his bailiffs to go out and commandeer the first automobile they found. They did so and a few minutes after the witness, Mrs. Vincenzo Farraro of Fairview, N. J., reached her home, she gave birth to a son. The suit was for $10,000 damages, brought by Mrs. Farraro and her husband against Joseph Grillo of Hackensack for assault. After the case was resumed the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiffs.

Erased Suit: Pair of Pajamas

Clad in pajamas, socks, and slippers, and covered by a mackintosh, a bridegroom was seen a few weeks ago hurrying into a London register office.

The man had taken out a license to be married an hour before the usual opening time, explaining to the registrar that an early ceremony was desired as his fiancée and himself wished to catch a train immediately after the ceremony. When he entered the register office about six inches of his pajamas were showing below his mackintosh.

He apologized to his bride and to the registrar, explaining that he had overslept, and that if he had stopped to dress they would have missed their train.

After the ceremony the registrar turned to complete the certificate, and while the wife paid the balance of the license the husband rushed downstairs and, in the waiting car, slipped a pair of trousers over his pajamas.

Now you can get yeast the way you want it

For the first time you can get a pure whole yeast in agreeable and convenient tablet form

Of surpassing interest to you thousands of men and women who understand the remarkable health-building properties of yeast is the knowledge that you can now get yeast the way you want it.

Ever since the therapeutic value of yeast was definitely determined by leading scientists, there has been an insistent demand for a pure whole yeast of high vitamin potency—that would keep, that would be easy and agreeable to take; that could be conveniently carried about in the pocket, and, finally, that would not form gas nor cause flatulency or belching.

In Yeast Foam Tablets these demands have been met.

A food—not a medicine

Yeast has within itself the amazing therapeutic element, vitamin, the corrective properties of which are more astounding than any known drug or medicine.

If you wish to take drugs or medicine, do so on the advice of your physician. If you wish to take a supplementary food, for its tonic action on the whole body, take pure, whole, concentrated yeast—Yeast Foam Tablets.

What this new yeast does

"Foods which lack vitamin will not maintain health," says a noted medical authority, "and many foods which originally contained this element reach our table with all vitamin eliminated, due to various heating and preparing processes."

The vitamin thus eliminated is restored through the addition to your regular food of Yeast Foam Tablets. They stimulate the appetite, aid digestion and enable the body to convert food into firm, healthy tissue.

What to take Yeast Foam Tablets for

For that ill health, commonly known as a run-down condition, and all its distressing symptoms such as sluggishness, anaemia, failing strength and endurance, lost appetite and malnutrition, you will find nothing more efficacious than a prompt treatment of Yeast Foam Tablets. They are sold by all druggists.

The Paramount Issue Is The Volstead Law — in the — Contest for Sheriff

The regular order of business in the sheriff's office in Will County is negligible—it is mediocre—it sort o' runs regular. But there is one great, outstanding important duty—the enforcement of the Volstead law. This is a new law designed to stop the traffic in strong drink. The law is ample to accomplish what it was designed for, but of no account and much worse than no account unless it is enforced.

Murdie Says:

he will enforce this law in letter and spirit, if the voters of Will County elect him sheriff. The people say they want it done, and the people hold the key which on April 11 will unlock the gate to the possibility.

The people are pronounced in their condemnation of the non-enforcement of this important law. They seem to be much in earnest about it and I take it they are. So am I. Here's the people's part in getting what they want and it's simple and to the point. Do it for me on April 11.

For Sheriff

MR. REID STANDS FOR LOWER RAILROAD RATES AND FARES TO HELP BUSINESS CONDITIONS AND FOR THE "SWEET" BILL TO REDUCE THE RAILROAD FARES AND RATES.

Mr. Copley voted to reduce the rate on the surtax in his interests, and to unload the burden on the voters.

MR. REID STANDS FOR A CASH BONUS FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Mr. Copley refused to help amend the bonus bill so as to permit a cash bonus for the soldiers to be paid out of the excess profits tax.

MR. REID IS IN FAVOR OF FREEING THIS DISTRICT FROM THE CONTROL OF THE NEWSPAPER TRUST.

Mr. Copley owns newspapers at Aurora, Joliet, Elgin and a number of other places in this Congressional district, and prints only such news and in such a way as to favor his political and business interests.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

RADIO GREETING TO SCOUTS

The Boy Scouts of America celebrated the twelfth anniversary February 8 to 14 on a nation-wide scale, its entire membership of over 525,000 scouts and scout leaders rededicating themselves to the scout oath and law. Hundreds of rallies, father and son banquets, parades, pageants and other demonstrations were made a part of the observance throughout the country, and the "good turn" was emphasized in a number of practical and impressive ways.

The following message from President Harding was broadcasted throughout the country, reaching practically half a million boys. The message was as follows:

"To the Boy Scouts of America: Congratulations to the Boy Scouts of America on their twelfth anniversary, February 8.

"This anniversary of an organization whose ideal is peace and friendship quite strikingly coincides with the birth of a new hope for world peace and friendship at the recent conference of the nations here in Washington. The responsibilities disclosed by that conference must be met by the men who come after us, and I look with growing confidence to that steadily increasing number of boys who are effectively trained to 'do their duty to God and their country' and to help other people at all times, as are the Boy Scouts of America and throughout the world.

"WARREN G. HARDING."

Governor Robertson of Oklahoma issued a message to boy scouts, which was signaled by relay by four stations over a distance of more than three miles absolutely without error by scouts of Oklahoma City.

Gov. Pat M. Neff of Texas not only took the scout oath, but also made a splendid address on "The Meaning of an Obligation."

BOY SCOUTS AT NAVAL ACADEMY

An analysis of the present regiment at Annapolis shows that 915 midshipmen have been boy scouts. Of this number 686 have gone as far as second class and 234 to first class rank. Thirty-three have been scoutmasters. Of the first class scouts, 78 have been patrol leaders, 22 Eagle scouts, 9 Star scouts, and 7 Life scouts.

In answer to a questionnaire the following facts were developed:

Of the total above mentioned, 466 were of the opinion that their boy scout experience had helped them generally in their present life, while 107 state that this experience has definitely aided them in their academic life. It is the verdict of 217 that scouting had helped them pass their entrance requirements to the academy and of 142 that its training had helped them in adjusting themselves to the discipline and life of the academy.

SCOUTS AT BIG CONFERENCE

The boy scouts who were given the great honor of being the official pages at the limitation of arms conference acquitted themselves so admirably that they won praise on all sides. Lord Riddell, spokesman for the British delegation who, by the way, is the publisher of the British magazine, The Boy Scout, was particularly interested in these Washington lads and always stopped to talk with them whenever he got a chance. He is a great believer in scouting and thinks it has a wonderful future, based as it is on friendliness, helpfulness and mutual understanding. "I love our British boys," he says, "but they are no hand-somer, no kinder, nor more courteous than my splendid, manly, young friends of the conference at Washington."

SCOUT GOOD TURNS FROM OKLA.

A few of the many good turns of the year reported by troops of McAlester, Okla., are as follows: Cut down and burned 200 tent caterpillar nests in Latimer county mountains, repaired two miles of mountain trail for farmers in same mountains, distributed literature for Red Cross Public Health Service, Ministerial Alliance, etc.; cleaned up nearly a ton of potential puncture causes from the city streets, collected bundles for poor in house-to-house campaign for Chamber of Commerce and Associated Charities, agitated state-wide demand for cleaner motion pictures, helped decorate Masonic temple for meeting of State Women's clubs, donated Christmas baskets for Salvation army distribution among poor.

LOOK OUT FOR BIRD FRIENDS

Reading (Pa.) scouts are maintaining feeding stations for birds throughout the country, particularly on Mt. Penn and Neversink mountain. They have set up a number of feed houses which they visit every Saturday or Sunday to see that their feathered friends have a sufficient larder. In several cases it was found that these houses had been tampered with, probably by careless or willful persons, who do not realize what this provision means to birds during the winter.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Sir Chartres Biron, London's chief magistrate, once gave a lecture on "Tact" and incidentally related a story of a Scottish minister who on one occasion thus addressed a condemned criminal: "Donald, mon, the gallows are ready, the hangman's ready, the rope's ready—are ye ready?"—Chicago Herald.

REALLY NO NEED FOR WORRY

If Young Hubby Had Known Wifey Was Not to Undergo Such a Terrible Operation.

A young husband came home from the city one day to find that a note had been left for him on the table by his wife.

He opened it and as he read the note his face paled.

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed, "to think that anything so awful could have happened."

He rushed out, jumped into a taxi, and was driven to the nearest hospital.

"My name is B——," he said to the secretary. "Is my wife here?"

He was informed that she was not.

"Are there any other hospitals near here?" he asked, and again came the reply in the negative.

In despair, and with a view to advice how to act, he showed the secretary the note his wife had left.

This is what the secretary read: "Dearest Jack—I have gone to have my kimono cut out."

Sensible Nurse.

Most folk at one time or another regale their friends with details of the surgical operations they have undergone. Nearly always great stress is laid on the discomfort attendant upon "coming to."

This patient was well on the road to recovery, and the Woman, who had visited her many times, had as yet heard nothing of the throes of "coming to." Wondering why, she asked her friend if she had experienced any trouble along that line. Her friend laughed. "That part was funny," she said. "Funny!" repeated the Woman, "in what way?" "Why, I asked the nurse, 'Am I coming to?' and the nurse replied, simply, 'No, you're not. That's all there was to it.'"—Chicago Journal.

"Billingsgate and golf," said the proffiter.

"Hear Ye! Hear Ye!"

The Judge has come from his chambers and stepped to the bench. "Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Hear Ye! The Honorable County Court of Will County is now in session, pursuant to adjournment," cries the court bailiff. The clerk of the court calls the case, and the trial of another lawsuit has begun.

One of the important duties of your County Clerk is his responsibility as Clerk of the County Court. As such clerk, he is accountable for all the files and records of the County Clerk.

And as every lawsuit involves the property or liberty of at least one or more individuals, it is to your interest that the files of your case, if you should have one, are kept properly, and its record written carefully.

For the past six years I have been a Deputy County Clerk in charge of the law division of the office. Prior to this, I was warrant and record clerk, handled the details of county primary and general elections, and assisted with the work in the tax department.

Ask your lawyer or any other man or woman whom I have served as Deputy County Clerk if I am courteous, careful and competent. Ask him if he believes that by reason of my general knowledge of all the work in the County Clerk's office, I am qualified to be your County Clerk.

Fully acquaint yourself with my reputation, ability and political standing, so that in the primary election, April 11th, when you render your verdict, you can express your deliberate and well-founded judgment on my candidacy.

Clerk of the Probate Court

He Is a Candidate for the Nomination on the Republican Ticket

THE OFFICE

Is one of the most important to be filled by the electors.

All estates of deceased persons must be filed in this office. This involves title to your house and all other real estate and all personal property.

In addition, children under guardianship and persons under conservatorship come under this work.

This means the proper recording and caring for the papers showing how and when your children's money is spent.

Thus you will see the great necessity for careful and correct work. In order to do this, the Clerk must have a thorough knowledge of Probate law to safeguard the rights of those having occasion to come to this office.

THE MAN AND HIS EXPERIENCE—

Mr. Wheeler has been Chief Deputy in this office for the past four years, and possesses all of the qualifications to give to the people a SAFE, EFFICIENT and COURTEOUS administration. Mr. Wheeler earnestly solicits your vote.

THE TIME AND PLACE—

APRIL 11th, 1922, 6 A.M. to 5 P. M., Your Voting Precinct.

Back to Normal in Public Offices

Compare your taxes now and in the years from 1910 to 1914, when I was Sheriff.

If you nominate and elect me Sheriff of this county, I promise an economical administration of the office, and the same good service in the conducting of the office as I did in the past.

In recognition of the services then given, I feel that I can honestly ask for your vote at the Primary, April 11th, 1922.

THAT was the idea we had when we started to make "Telling Tales" Magazine, and we have lived up to it.

Every month there are from a dozen to fifteen complete short stories by such writers as Octavus Roy Cohen, Achmed Abdullah, Henry Leverage, Thomas Edgelow, Christine Whiting Parmenter, Katherine Metcalf Root, Margaret Sangster, Harry Kemp and Robert W. Sneddon. All of these are regular contributors to America's leading short-story magazine.

But don't take our word for it. We want you to know "Telling Tales" for yourself, and as a special inducement we are making the following offer:

"Telling Tales" is regularly 25c. a copy—$3.00 a year, but to give you a chance to get acquainted with it, here's what we'll do. Send a quarter for one issue—the regular price—and we will send THREE copies instead of the one you paid for. This offer is for a limited time only. To the Men Who Have Borne Arms for America

Last of a Series of Letters from Washington to People of the 11th Illinois Congressional District, on Issues of the Day, by Representative I. C. Copley

In writing this series of letters I purposely left this one near to the last, not because it was least important but rather because I had reason to hope the adjusted compensation bill would pass the House of Representatives in time for me to tell you something about it and to express to you the great satisfaction that I feel that this work has been brought to such a successful conclusion. It was confronted with more obstacles than any bill that has passed Congress during my twelve years of service. We have surmounted every one of these and have passed a bill which will stand the test of every objection brought forward by any man who believes that a moral obligation rests on the shoulders of the people of this country to adjust the compensation of the men who did our most important work during the war in order that their remuneration might be comparable to that of the other workers who stayed at home.

A discussion of this obligation is very much like a debate on the miracles of the Bible. If any man believes, no argument can change his mind. If he does not believe, perhaps arguments and evidence may be produced that may lead him to change his mind. Personally, I believe the adjusted compensation is a moral obligation on the part of the people of this country. I have several reasons for so thinking and I need not go outside of my own personal sphere of activities for reasons which seem to me overwhelming.

One hundred and thirty-two men who were in the employ of the companies which I have had the honor to direct, went to the world war as soldiers. All of them who came back, even if they were in good health, returned poorer in pocket than when they went. Those who remained at home were given an opportunity through increased wages to improve their conditions and a great many of them took advantage of these opportunities. This was the first war in the history of this Republic in which our armies were raised by the selective draft. These young men had no option, they had to go. I believe that it is one of the functions of this government that it must have the power to select the men who must act as the defenders of our national integrity and national honor, even if it involves offering their lives as a sacrifice, but I do not believe it is one of the functions of government to take a certain one hundred and thirty-two of my fellow workers and compel them to do this at a financial loss and at the same time create conditions such that the rest of us can profit because of their sacrifice.

We were new in the war game and we made many mistakes; the most serious was that we failed to conscript all the man and woman power and all the wealth in this country. While our men were offering their lives as a sacrifice in a foreign land no American citizens should have been allowed to enrich himself because of the war.

The average wealth of this country in 1910 was less than $1,900.00 per capita.

This bill is all predicated on the number of days' service. One dollar a day is allowed for each day's service in this country with 25c added for every day overseas, counting such service from the date of embarkation to the date of debarkation. The average service pay will amount to $374.00. We then offer, according to the Act just passed, any one of four different choices.

First, a paid up endowment insurance policy. As an inducement to accept this we are adding another twenty-five per cent such that the average would be $467.50. This is compounded for twenty years at 4½% annually, making on the average, a little over $1,125.00. If the veteran lives the entire twenty years he will be given that amount in cash; if he dies meanwhile that amount in insurance will be paid to his wife, children, mother, sister, or such beneficiary as he selects. These policies are called adjusted pay certificates and the veteran can take his certificate to any bank within the first three years and borrow 50% of the adjusted service pay on that, or on an average $187.00. At the end of that time the government will take up all these loans and will then loan 85% for the next three years, at which time a still larger percentage can be borrowed. What it actually means is that a capital of $467.50 on the average has been set aside to compound for each one of you World War veterans for twenty years and this amount is almost exactly one-fourth of the wealth accumulated by each individual in this country in his entire lifetime, according to the Census of 1910, or in other words for just about one year's work on the average you young men are paid just about one-fourth of the amount which each individual has accumulated in this country during his entire lifetime. I think you will regard it as a most liberal settlement and yet it is just about what the average young man could have saved had he stayed in this country and been ordinarily industrious and at the same time practiced thrift.

The Second option provides that 40% shall be added to the average of $374.00 to be paid to such of you young men as want vocational training. The payments to be made at the rate of $1.75 per day during the time you are engaged in this training until the amount is entirely used up.

The third option provides that twenty-five per cent shall be added to $374.00 on the average and that this may be applied in helping you young men purchase a home in town or in the country.

The fourth option provides for reclamation of lands that are waste at the present time, which by the addition of capital and labor might become very valuable. These are to be worked solely for the benefit of the soldiers. They are to be engaged in the labor of transformation and are to be given an opportunity to pay for the land in twenty-five annual installments. The first payments are to be made out of this average of $374.00 such that you young men get an opportunity to work at fair wages to buy a valuable farm and are to be given your adjusted compensation as a part payment on such a project.

Since I have been a Member of Congress I have done everything within my power to adequately recompense the veterans of the Civil War for their sacrifices during that struggle. The pensions which the United States government has been giving them, are a recognition of the obligation to care for the old age of the men who in the prime of their lives gave of their strength that our Union might be preserved and that this country might be continued as a place for offering equal opportunity for all men under the law.

No more heroic set of men ever left their homes than those who defended our Country's honor in the Spanish-American War and no case of a needy veteran, his widow or his children has ever been turned down without the best efforts that is in me to get the just and lawful help.

I sincerely hope that civilization has at last reached such a point that we are forever through with war between enlightened peoples. If such is the fact, not only does the present generation owe all the more to you soldiers, but all posterity will share in the blessings.

As a Member of the Ways and Means Committee, charged with the duty of bringing out this adjusted compensation bill, I have given my best time and thought. The insurance certificates, which are practically the back bone of this bill, are solely the result of my own work and suggestions. If there is any credit in them I can modestly claim the share due to the author; if there is any discredit in the mind of any man I shall not seek to dodge my responsibility. It is my greatest contribution to the accomplishment of this adjusted service compensation.

As a Committee we have fought the prejudices of the Secretary of the Treasury himself and of the Comptroller of the Currency. We have met every objection which they have made, with the single possible exception of belief in the moral obligation. We guided this bill past every conceivable sort of obstacle and argument and threatened division of the Republican party until its passage in the final form by an overwhelming majority of enthusiastic and satisfied Republican Members of Congress, finally bringing to its support almost the united membership of the Democratic Members of Congress as well.

Notwithstanding there is some small division in thought in recognizing the obligation to adjust the compensation, there is no division in the question of caring for the sick and disabled soldiers. Already we have expended over a billion dollars for this purpose and we are rapidly organizing the proper departments of this government in order that we may adequately care for the needs and comforts of the most unfortunate of our citizens, those who offered themselves as a necessary sacrifice. I think your various Posts are well aware of the very great number whom we have helped through my office in Washington.

To those of you who have shared the glory of protecting this Union and its honor and the civilization of the world in the last three wars I can only say that my every effort was constantly spurred on by the consciousness that whatever I might accomplish along this line was simply discharging a debt not only as the Representative of the citizens of the Eleventh Congressional District of Illinois but also my own personal obligation as a citizen of the United States, our country blessed beyond all others in this world and all made possible by your service.

Respectfully submitted,
I. C. COPLEY.

Arrow Deadly as Bullet.

A mounted Indian or white man with bow and arrows sometimes could kill more buffaloes than a man could kill with a rifle, says the American Forestry Magazine. At close range the arrow was as deadly as the bullet, it made less noise, and arrows could be discharged three or four times as rapidly as bullets from muzzle-loading guns.

They Can Afford It.

One guess is that the only people who laugh and grow fat are those who don't have to work for their board and shelter.

COMMUNITY RESPONSIBILITY TOWARD OUR NEIGHBORS

This great old world is full of people—many kinds, colors, shapes and sizes, yet, there are no two of us alike either in talk, looks, appearance or manners and modes of living. Too, in this world are laws which humans must obey. In the animal kingdom a wolf can seize its prey and thus go about his meal without being disturbed, but in the human kingdom a man cannot seize his prey and run unless he get caught and punished. There are laws we must obey.

One of the greatest laws is "Love Thy Neighbor As Thyself." How many of us are doing that or how many are looking out for A No. 1? Just look at those last people. Look and think. Can't you see something the matter with them? See how their very lives are shriveling, how folks care not to be in their presence, how they are saying something sarcastic every time they open their mouths, how they fail to possess leadership which is one of the greatest factors in life, how they are always putting the work over on the other fellow or they are doing it all themselves and afterwards making a big blow about what they did. We don't have to tell people what we are. They can see it in our faces or hear it in our voices or even know it by the lives we live. Someone has said, "What we are speaks so loud that folks cannot hear what we say."

Then think of the other type of neighbor who finds time to speak a good word for someone, who is doing some little thing all the time which perhaps is unknown to many. She unstintingly gives part of her life and is happier, and a bigger person for it. Such a person has open eyes, open mind, and open heart, and seizes every opportunity to do what she can.

This community is like every other small community with those two kinds of people. Which kind of a neighbor would you like to be? It would take a majority of the friendly, willing, open-hearted people to make a thoroughly respectable, clean neighborhood without strife, or hatred or hard feeling toward the other fellow. Again, which kind would you like to be? It is possible to be the better kind if you want to. Choose!

How does that sound? Yet it is exactly what some of us say, think and do, but we are not honest enough to own up to it. It seems to me that we must get a different spirit toward each other, act human, be human, so everybody can enjoy living. "Give to the world the best that you have and the best will come back to you."

In closing I would like to add: "So many churches, so many creeds, So many roads that wind and wind When the chief thing this old world needs Is just the act of being kind."

Vitamin Miracle and Mystery of the Scientific World

Whatever vitamin is, and nobody so far has been able to find out, its action is nothing short of miraculous. Any substance, administered in most minute doses, that can quickly revive dying pigeons, white rats, guinea pigs and other animals and restore them to normal vigor and health within a few hours, is close indeed to the secret of Life itself.

Scientific research, now being diligently prosecuted in hospitals, universities and laboratories all over the world, would seem to show that vitamin is present in a great many raw foods. Evidently Nature intended man to eat vegetables just as they come out of the ground, grains in the whole kernel just as they are harvested, fruits just as they are picked.

Prehistoric man may have done so but Nature did not foresee the grouping of people in cities, the impossibility of each man raising his own food-stuffs and the resulting necessity of storing, shipping, freezing, sterilizing and preserving foods.

For these operations and other processes such as heating, cooking, milling of grain, etc., all tend to destroy or remove the precious vitamin.

Fortunately, in the tiny yeast plant a veritable mine of vitamin has been found and yeast today is being eaten, as a supplementary and corrective food, by millions of men, women and children, and with most amazing results. Just as one instance among uncounted thousands, the records in the British War office illustrate the magic power of vitamin.

Besieged in Kut, during the late war, were thousands of British soldiers. They were rationed on white-flour biscuits and beef, an excellent diet to be sure, providing it is accompanied by other foods which contain vitamin. (White flour contains no vitamin, due to milling of the grain and beef, especially if it is lean, is virtually without vitamin value.)

These other foods that the soldiers needed they could not get and consequently a nutritional deficiency disease, beriberi, broke out. Hundreds died; thousands were incapacitated by physical and nervous debility.

When word of this condition reached headquarters, six huge bombing planes were sent from the European front to the dying garrison at Kut. Arriving there, the Turks were astonished by the unique spectacle of British planes showering missiles upon their own besieged troops. What were these missiles? They were packages of dried, concentrated yeast!

Added to the ration of beef and biscuits, the yeast did its work, eliminated the beriberi and restored the soldiers to normal strength and vigor.

Is it not possible that thousands of people in the United States and other countries are suffering this same beriberi under another name? Its symptoms are precisely those that accompany what most people call loosely a "run down" condition.

If yeast, as it now appears likely, can virtually make new bodies out of old, by means of its mysterious vitamin content, can it not justly be called the miracle of old age?

Old Buggy His Court.
A judge of Livingston, N. J., is on record as holding court from the seat of an old buggy. The case was that of a tenant who had disregarded notice to vacate property, so the buggy was drawn up within a short distance of the house in question and the trial proceeded.

Wise Provision of Nature.
Jud Tunkins says a man who never makes a mistake has to die fearful of going to avoid spoiling his record.

Fundamental Business Principles.
From a purely coldblooded business point of view, honesty is the best policy. To treat the other man as you would have him treat you is an equally fundamental business principle. This does not mean that you should surrender your rights or neglect to avail yourself of your opportunities. It simply means that in the game of business, the same rules of sportsmanship should prevail as in a boxing bout, a match of golf, or in a football game.

Salt and Dampness.
Salt is what is called "hygroscopic," that is, it eagerly absorbs moisture. In fact, both air and salt are absorbents of moisture and it is a contest between them as to which gets it. Results depend on atmospheric conditions. Ordinary atmosphere always contains a proportion of moisture, and warm air is apt to be more humid than cold, as it absorbs and holds water vapor more readily than cold air. Salt has such affinity for moisture that under such conditions it draws it from the air. When the air becomes dry, the moisture is given up by the salt, which in turn becomes dry as it returns the moisture to the air.

"MY LASSIE!"

Synopsis.—Jane Harding, respectable and conservative old maid—but never too old to think of marriage—with more money than minded spinster, Miss Higgins-Browne, into financing an expedition to hunt for buried treasure on Leeward Island. Her niece, Virginia Harding, undertaking to stop her, gets on the vessel and is unwillingly carried along. By no means concealing her distaste for the expedition and her contempt for its members, Virginia makes the acquaintance of the Honorable Cuthbert Vane. Talking with Dugald Shaw, leader of the expedition, Virginia very frankly expresses her views, practically accusing Shaw and the other members of the party, including a somewhat uncertain personage Captain Magnus, and a shady "financier," Hamilton H. Tubbs, of being in a conspiracy to defraud Jane Harding. Landing on the island is a matter of some difficulty. Virginia, being carried ashore in the arms of Cuthbert Vane. The party gets settled. Miss Browne tells about the treasure. Virginia declares herself out of it. The dead sailor's map is produced. Virginia finds a mysterious dog, Crusoe. Virginia visits the wreck of the Island Queen. The dog saves Virginia from advances by Captain Magnus.

CHAPTER VIII.

"Lassie, Lassie..."

Two or three days later occurred a painful episode. The small unsuspected germ of it had lain ambushed in a discourse of Mr. Shaw's, delivered shortly after our arrival on the island, on the multifarious uses of the cocopalms. He told how the juice from the unexpanded flower-spines is drawn off to form a potent toddy, so that where every prospect pleases man may still be vile. Cookie, experimentally disposed, set to work. Mr. Vane, also experimentally, sampled the results of Cookie's efforts. The liquor had merely been allowed to ferment, whereas a complicated process is necessary for the manufacture of the true arrack, but enough had been achieved to bring about dire consequences for Cuthbert Vane, who had found the liquid cool and refreshing, and was skeptical about its potency.

Aunt Jane took the matter very hard, and rebuked the ribald mirth of Mr. Tubbs. He had to shed tears over a devastating poem called "The Drunkard's Home," before she would forgive him. Cookie made his peace by engaging to vote the prohibition ticket at the next election.

Mr. Shaw was disturbed over Cuthbert, who was not at all bad, only queer and sleepy, and had to be led away to slumber in retirement. Also, it was exceptionally low tide and Mr. Shaw had counted on taking advantage of it to work in the cave. Now Cuthbert was laid up—

"You and I will have to manage by ourselves, Magnus."

"Nothing doing—boat got to be patched up—go out there without it and get caught!" growled the captain. "Well, lend a hand, then. We can be ready with the boat inside an hour."

The captain hesitated queerly. His wandering eyes seemed to be searching in every quarter for something they did not find. At last he mumbled that he thought he felt a touch of the sun, and had decided to lay off for the afternoon and make his way across the island. He said he wanted to shoot water-fowl and that they had all been frightened away from the cove, but that with the glass he had seen them from Lookout thickly about the other bay.

"Very well," said the Scotchman coldly. "I suppose you must suit yourself. I can get the boat in shape without help, I dare say." I saw him presently looking in an annoyed and puzzled fashion after the vanishing figure of the sailor.

Mr. Tubbs and the umbrellas soon disappeared into the woods. I believe the search for Bill Halliwell's tombstone was no longer very actively pursued, and that he and Aunt Jane and Violet spent their time ensconced in a snug little nook with hammocks and cushions. I more than suspected Mr. Tubbs of feeling that such a bird in the hand as Aunt Jane was worth many doubloons in the bush. But in spite of uneasiness about the future, for the present I rested secure in the certainty that they could not elope from the island, and that there was no one on it with authority to metamorphose Aunt Jane into Mrs. Hamilton H. Tubbs.

The waters of the cove had receded until a fringe of rocks under the high hand of the point, usually covered, had been left bare. I had watched the emergence of their black jagged surfaces for some time before it occurred to me that they offered a means of access to the cave. The cave—place of fascination and mystery! Here was the opportunity of all others to explore it, unhampered by any one, just Crusoe and I alone, in the fashion that left me freest to indulge my dreams.

I waited until the Scotchman's back was safely turned, because if he saw me setting forth on this excursion he was quite certain to command me to return, and I had no intention of submitting to his dictatorial ways and yet was not quite sure how I was successfully to defy him.

The retreating tide had left deep pools behind, each a little cosmos of fairy seaweeds and tiny scuttling crabs and rich and wonderful forms of life which were strange to me. Crusoe and I were very much interested, and lingered a good deal on the way. But at last we reached the great archway, and passed with a suddenness which was like a plunge into cool water from the hot glare of the tropic sunshine into the green shadow of the cavern.

At the lower end, between two arches, a black, water-worn rock piling rang under one's feet. Further in under the point the floor of the cave was covered with white sand. All the great shadowy place was murmuring like a vast sea-shell.

I wished I could visit the place in darkness. It would be thrice as mysterious, filled with its hollow whispering echoes, as in the day. From the ledge far above my head led off those narrow, teasing crevices in which the three explorers did their unrequited burrowing. I could see the strands of a rope ladder lying coiled at the edge of the shelf, where it was secured by spikes. The men dragged down the ladder with a boat-hook when they wanted to ascend. I looked about with a hope that perhaps they had left the boat-hook somewhere.

I found no boat-hook, but instead a spade, which had been driven deep into the sand and left, too firmly imbedded for the tide to bear away. At once a burning hope that I, alone and unassisted, might bring to light the treasure of the Bonny Lass seethed in my veins. I jerked the spade loose and fell to.

I now discovered the great truth that digging for treasure is the most thrilling and absorbing occupation known to man. Time ceased to be, and the weight of the damp and close-packed sand seemed that of feathers. This temporary state of exaltation passed, to be sure, and the sand got very heavy, and my back ached, but still I dug. Crusoe began to fuss about and bark. He came and tugged at my skirt, uttering an uneasy whine.

"Be quiet, Crusoe!" I commanded, threatening him with my spade. The madness of the treasure-lust possessed me. I was panting now, and my hands began to feel like baseball mitts, but still I dug. Crusoe had ceased to importune me; vaguely I was aware that he had got tired and run off. I toiled on, pausing now and then for breath. I was leaning on my spade, rather dejectedly considering the modest excavation I had achieved, when I felt a little cool splash at my feet. Dropping my spade I whirled around—and a shriek echoed through the cave as I saw pouring into it the dark insidious torrent of the returning tide.

A Shriek Echoed Through the Cave.

How had I forgotten it, that deadly thing, muttering to itself out there, ready to spring back like an unleashed beast? Crusoe had warned me—and then he had forsaken me, and I was alone.

And yet at first, wild as my terror was, I had no thought but that somehow I could escape. That these waters were for me the very face of death, sure and relentless, terrible and slow, did not at once seize hold upon my heart.

Frantically I sprang for the entrance on the cove. The floor of the cave was sloping and the water deepened swiftly as I advanced. Soon I was floundering to my knees, and on the instant a great wave rushed in, drenching me to the waist, dazing me with its spray and uproar, and driving me back to the far end of the cave.

With a dreadful hollow sucking sound the surge retreated. I staggered toward the archway that was my only door to life. The water was deeper now, and swiftly came another fierce inrush of the sea that drove me back.

I fled to the far end of the cave, but the sea pursued me. Swiftly the water climbed—it flung me against the wall, then dragged me back. I clutched at the naked rock with bleeding fingers.

Again, after a paroxysm during which I had seemed to stand a great way off and listen to my own shrieks, there came to me a moment of calm. I knew that my one tenuous thread of hope lay in launching myself into that wild flood that was tearing through the cove. I was not a strong swimmer, but a buoyant one. I might find refuge on some half-submerged rock on the shores of the cove—at least I should perish in the open, in the sunlight, not trapped like a desperate rat. And I began to fight my way toward the opening.

And then a dreadful vision flashed across my mind, weighted down my feet like lead, choked back even the cry from my frozen lips. Sharks! The black cutting fin, the livid belly, the dreadful jaws opening—no, no, better to die here, better the clean embrace of the waters—if indeed the sharks did not come into the cave.

And then I think I went quite mad. I remember trying to climb up to the ledge which hung befitting fifteen feet above. Afterward my poor hands showed how desperately. And I remember that once I slipped and went clear under, and how I choked and strangled in the salt water. For my mouth was always open, screaming, screaming continually.

And when I saw the boat fighting its way inch by inch into the cave I was sure that it was a vision, and that only my own wild beseeching of him to save me had made the face of Dugald Shaw arise before my dying eyes. Dugald Shaw was still mending the boat on the shore of the cove, and this was a mocking phantom.

Only the warm human clasp of the arms that drew me into the boat made me believe in him.

The boat bobbed quietly in the eddy at the far end of the cave, while a wet, sobbing, choking heap clung to Dugald Shaw. I clasped him about the neck and would not let him go, for fear that I should find myself alone again, perishing in the dark water. My head was on his breast, and he was pressing back my wet hair with strong and tender hands.

What was this he was saying? "My lassie, my little, little lassie!"

And no less incredible than this it was to feel his cheek pressed, very gently, against my hair—

After a little my self-control came back to me. I stopped my senseless childish crying, lifted my head and tried to speak. I could only whisper, "You came, you came!"

"Of course I came!" he said huskily. "There, don't tremble so—you are safe—safe in my arms!"

After a while he lifted me into the stern and began to maneuver the boat out of the cave. I suppose at another time I should have realized the peril of it. The fierce flow through the archway all but swamped us, the current threatened to hurl us against the rocks, but I felt no fear. He had come to save me, and he would. All at once the dreadful shadow of the cavern was left behind, and the sunshine immersed my chilled body like a draught of wine. I lay huddled in the stern, my cheek upon my hand, as he rowed swiftly across the cove and drove the boat upon the beach.

Everybody but Captain Magnus was assembled there, including Crusoe. Crusoe it was who had given warning of my danger. Like a wise little dog, when I ignored his admonitions he had run home. At first his uneasiness and troubled barking had got no notice. Once or twice the Scotchman, worried by his fretfulness, had ordered him away. Then across his preoccupied mind there flashed a doubt. He laid down his tools and spoke to the animal. Instantly Crusoe dashed for the rocks, barking and crying with eagerness.

Then Mr. Shaw understood. He snatched the painter of the boat and dragged it down the beach. He was shoving off as Cookie, roused by Crusoe's barking, appeared from the seclusion of his afternoon siesta. To him were borne the Scotchman's parting words:

"Virginia Harding—in the cave—hot blankets—may be drowning—"

"And at that," said Cookie, relating his part in the near tragedy with unction, "I jes' natchally plumped right down on mah bones and wrestled with de Lawd in prayah."

Virginia finds a diary on the Island Queen.

ROBBIE ROBIN

"It is so since," chirped Robbie Robin, "that almost every one knows me by sight at least. And most people know my voice when they hear it and the different songs and calls I have."

"I am glad of that for I like many people. I like friends and I like to be about. I am naturally sociable and I am not a snob."

"I've a fine voice and I look quite smart, I'm told, but I am not a snob. And I wouldn't be a snob for anything."

"A snob is a creature who puts on airs and who thinks he is better than other creatures. And I know what I think of a snob."

"Do tell me," said Mrs. Robbie.

"I think a snob is a foolish creature," said Robbie Robin. "Any creature who thinks he is better than some one else is foolish."

"How does he know he is better than any one else? He doesn't know it. Perhaps he may have more money or better clothes than the next person, but he may not have any right to be a snob."

"He may be mean and cross and selfish. Or he may be silly and vain."

"A snob is always rather apt to be like that. And those who have a right to be snobs never are."

"That sounds very strange," said Mrs. Robbie. "Pray explain."

"Well," said Robbie, "any one who is fine enough to be a snob is too fine to be a snob. A snob is such a silly, conceited thing that any one who has the right to put on airs wouldn't do it, because that would make such a person at once become a silly, conceited person."

"Oh, I see, chirp, chirp, I see," said Mrs. Robbie.

"I would never be a snob," said Robbie. "I believe in being friendly and sociable. I'll go walking and hopping on green grass whether it is the grass of a person who owns a fortune or whether it is the grass of a person who has very few extra pennies lying around."

"But oh, Mrs. Robbie, how I do enjoy sprinkling myself. I wish that people would give me drinking dishes of water which are big enough for me to bathe in, too."

"A great many do this, and I am very thankful. It is kind of people to give us drinking dishes and bathtubs. But I also wish they would be quite careful to put these dishes where they are pretty sure that cats cannot get at them, for cats may come for us when we're not on our guard and when we're bathing and having a fine time."

"But dear Mrs. Robbie, though we are so fond of a good bath as often as we can get one we're very bad housekeepers. They say our nests are considered very dirty, for we don't bother much about how we build them. We build very carelessly and we use weed stalks or bits of dried grass or mud or anything else that is handy."

"Yes, that is true," said Mrs. Robbie. "But I am fond of my untidy home. I sit on two broods of eggs through the summer and sit on four eggs at a time."

"But I stay in the same nest. Even though it is a bit untidy I like it!"

"But I'm not a fancy creature."

"Oh, Mrs. Robbie, I've been told that there are some fine worms in the lawn three places down from here. Let us fly there and have a little meal."

"I don't believe it will be a little meal," said Mrs. Robbie. "We're not strong for little meals. We're great for big meals."

"How many worms we can eat! And how we love to gobble them down whole!"

"We have good appetites, you and I."

"Indeed we have," said Robbie. "So they flew off and had a fine meal and then Robbie Robin sang a song of joy, and this was what he sang: I love the whole world and I love every one."

To sing and to eat are both lots of fun. I wouldn't be silly and act like a snob. For no robin would and, and least of all Robbie!

"For that," he said, "is my name when I'm making up songs, as it rhymes more easily than Robbie."

SMART NEW SPRING WRAP; MILLINERY IS BEWITCHING

A NEW spring wrap and a new spring hat, what more could one wish for? It matters not which way the wind blows, weather's caprice cannot affect the happy possessor of a smart new coat. The present day wraps are a joy to womankind, with their roomy sleeves and "comfy" collars, which are so adjustable to circumstances.

A coat is known by its lining. There is real satisfaction in having a coat that is attractive inside and out. Rich linings of crepe de chine and canton crepe in vivid red, jade and turquoise enliven some of the neutral-toned top apple green, larkspur blue, periwinkle, lettuce green and almond, rose tones, violet and orchid, sage green, partridge brown and daffodil yellow, making special mention of dandelion yellow (the French call it dent de lion).

In fact all the leading fashion revues are casting yellow in a stellar part. The wearing of daffodil hats and all solid yellow flower toques is proscribed.

The latest is for earrings and bead necklace to match the hat. In this vogue the chapeau is usually a solid jade green, sapphire blue, or perhaps scarlet. At least the idea is to coats. The tendency for crepe-like weaves in linings is very apparent this season.

As to fabrics, an outstanding new weave is called veldyne. Cashmere suede cloths and duvetyne are again popular and one hears much of kasha cloth and krepeknit.

Straight-line coats, with their greatest fullness above the waist, are favored types. In fact the blouse is carried to such an extreme in some instances, it shows the cape influence.

Solid colors are of excellent selection in high-grade garments and the new ideas range especially in camel and deer shades. There is decided favor expressed for wood tans and all light-toned weaves, but coming with these is the announcement that navy blue is especially good. This is an important note, for, as most of us know, for several seasons navy has been relegated to the background. One has no idea of the effectiveness of this fashion until one sees it in actuality. This is especially charming when carried out with a very simple crepe or satin frock in navy, black, or perhaps sand color, as a foil to the high colored accessories.

That little hat in the top circle is of apple green tucked taffeta. The existing popularity of felts is expressed in the orange colored felt with white yarn balls. A navy-blue sailor, faced with white straw plaque, is shown in the third circle.

The incoming vogue for wide brims is set forth in the hat with bag. It is amber-brown, faced with sapphire straw plaque and amber braid is patterned on bag to match. There are also little amber beads. The bag shows sapphire lining. The vogue for millinery sets leads to designs which include, sometimes, not only bags but neck pieces and girdles to be worn with the frock. In this way the idea of a bright color note with somber frocks is carried out.

One makes no mistake in buying a coat along the lines of the one featured in the accompanying illustration. It is of deer-colored veldyne. Note the single button fastening, which is indicated in a majority of the advance models, together with the cape effect.

The new millinery colors are as inspirational as flowers in springtime. To repeat their very names has a happy effect; for instance there is

A UNION OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Healthy Housewife---Happy Home

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Helped Form Many

For the ailing, half-sick housewife such a union is impossible. Often times even the slightest form of housework cannot be accomplished. Yet the work must be done.

Many women struggle along for years suffering from some form of female trouble that make their lives miserable and their homes far from happy.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped thousands of just such women regain their health and strength. Just give your thought to the following letters and remember that the women who wrote these letters knew how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound and again afterwards. It helped them—let it help you.

Had Nervous Spells

Horatio, Ark.—"I had nervous spells and awful bad feelings. My right side and my back hurt me all the time and I had been going down in health for six or seven years. For three years I had not been able to do my work without help. I weighed only 95 pounds when my husband's mother persuaded me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I heartily recommend it to all suffering women, as I have gained weight and health. I can do all my work, anything I want to do."—Mrs. JIM REARICK, Horatio, Arkansas.

PLATONIC FRIENDSHIP A JOKE

Opinion Firmly Held by One Man, and He Has Good Reason for So Believing.

I never believed in platonic friendship. I've heard a lot about it, but I claim it's a joke!

But one summer I met a pretty girl who believed in it. She told me that our friendship would have to be platonic or nothing. She said we could be good chums and not spoil it all by becoming sentimental. I didn't want to get married, so I readily agreed. As we both then knew that it would be perfectly safe, we started in at once with moonlight and so forth.

That was ten years ago. Today we have seven fine children and my wife is very busy. So am I. Any woman who has ever had to take care of seven fine children knows how busy my wife is, and any man who has ever had to provide for that number knows how busy I am.

I never believe in platonic friendship. I've heard a lot about it, but I claim it's a joke.—William Sanford in Judge.

Revolutionizing the Orchestra.

Leo Sir, an aged violin maker of Marmande, France, has perfected instruments that may revolutionize the orchestra. At present we use four violin-type instruments, ranging from the soprano violin to the bass viol. M. Sir provides two super-sopranos, a mezzo-soprano slightly above the present alto, barytone just below the tenor and a sub-bass. The newly organized orchestra has been tried out at the Montmartre theater and critics declare that the possibilities of interpretation are wonderfully increased. —Scientific American.

INSTALLS WIRELESS

J. C. Nielsen, local agent of the Rock Island, has installed a wireless receiving set at his home and has been able to "listen in" on the latest concerts. On Sunday morning he hears sermons preached by the ministers in Chicago, and can also hear the congregation sing. The minister's words were very distinct. Mr. Nielsen also has received all kinds of news reports, market quotations, etc. He has entertained his friends of an evening listening to concerts in Chicago.

FILE PETITIONS

The village election which will be held April 18 is coming in for attention now. Albert Braun, Edward Schenkel and Ona E. McGovney have filed their petitions for village trustees. Karl Krapp has also filed his petition for village clerk in place of Wm. Semmler, who is quitting this office after eleven years of service. During this time the village has made many improvements. Electric street and house light, as well as power, extension of water mains, drilling of new well, building of village hall, etc., are among the noteworthy improvements made during the past eleven years, the water meter system was also installed during this period. Mr. Semmler greatly appreciates the support he has received at every election from the voters of the village, which enabled him to hold office continually for 11 years. Increased activity in the newspaper and printing business now demands all of Mr. Semmler's time and he is therefore obliged to withdraw from local politics.

I. T. CLASS ENTERTAINED

The I. T. Class of the Evangelical Sunday school held their meeting last Thursday evening at the home of Miss Florence Cooper. There was a full attendance and the program was planned appropriate to the Lenten season.

Mrs. Woodrich, the teacher of the class, gave an interesting reading on the Oberammergau Passion Play, its characters, costumes, tableaux, stage setting, etc. Plans were also made for a sale in the near future for the benefit of the new church building.

MANY SEEK POST OFFICE

It is understood that there are a number of seekers for the Mokena postmastership. The examination is to be held on Saturday, April 8th. This office is now in the third class and has a salary of $1,000 attached to it. Rumors has it that Mrs. Sadie F. Grogan may take the examination again, but this is not confirmed.

Miss Knickerbocker has also purchased a wireless outfit but has not got it in full working order.

MRS. J. SCHIEK LAID TO REST

Mrs. J. Schiek, well known former Mokena resident who died of pneumonia at the home of her son in Chicago last Wednesday, was buried here from her old home Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Schiek lived in Mokena for many years with her daughter, Julia. After the latter's death, Mrs. Schiek spent the winters in Chicago with her son and during the summer months lived in her old home in Mokena. She is survived by two sons, one residing in Chicago, one in Tulsa, Oklahoma, who motored all the way to attend his mother's funeral and arrived here on time. One daughter, Mrs. John Stellwagen, of Mokena, also survives the deceased. Burial took place in St. John's cemetery, Rev. Wm. Kreis, officiating.

Mesdames A O Maue, George McGovney of Mokena and George Andrews and Peter Folkers of Frankfort attended a meeting of the county central committee wymea held at the auditorium, Joliet, Saturday. Various talks were given on politics. A banquet followed the gathering.

MUST HAVE BURIAL PERMIT

Sextons of cemeteries about Mokena have received notices the past week from the State Board of Health that they must not inter or bury any corpse in these cemeteries without first having received a burial permit from the undertaker. It is alleged that several funerals were held without the necessary burial permits.

TAKING SUBSCRIPTIONS

A subscription list has been placed in the barber shop for subscriptions for the fund of $450.00 to be used for playground equipment at the Mokena public school. So far quite a number of persons have signed this list and have pledged various amounts.

NO MONEY FOR OIL

The village of Mokena is out $500 which was appropriated by the board last fall for the purpose of oiling the village streets this summer. These $500 were cut out of the tax appropriation through a misunderstanding in the office of the County clerk at Joliet. This means that Mokena will have to swallow the dust this summer unless the citizens are public-spirited enough to raise enough money by subscription to purchase and apply the road oil.

COMMITTEE GOES TO DANVILLE

Members of the building committee of the St. John Evangelical church went to Danville Tuesday to select the brick for the new St. John Evangelical church.

BOND ISSUE BEING AGITATED

The new bond issue of $1500 which is to be voted on at the village election April 18th, is being strongly agitated in order to get it to carry. If this bond issue is voted down it will mean mighty hard sledding for the board to meet the debts coming due. It will be to the best interests of the village to have this bond issue pass as these bonds will not mature for the next ten years, and during this time it will enable the village to pay off the heavy indebtedness it is now in. The village now is over $5,000 in debt.

MAY HAVE DOUBLE BUS SERVICE

It is understood that a keen rivalry exists between the company operating the present bus line and another competitor who it is said is contemplating running an opposition motor bus line from Chicago Heights to Joliet. It is understood that the competing line expects to run its busses ahead of the schedule of the present busses. The new bus line service it is reported is to start April first if plans carry out.

Since the auto bus line has commenced operations the question arises: "Why does the village board of Frankfort not require this line to secure franchise rights to operate its busses over the village streets the same as the traction line was obliged to do when it ran its line through the village?"

The Ladies' Aid of the St. Peter's Evangelical church will meet next Wednesday afternoon at the church parlors.
